 - i. The Buyer must maintain pet health insurance for the period of this health guarantee. Failure for the Buyer to have pet health insurance will void the Seller's health guarantee.
 - ii. Should the Devon Rex die at any time after possession and while this Health Guarantee is in force, a necropsy is required at purchasers' expense, the results to be given to directly to the seller in writing from the veterinary professional that performed the necropsy within 5 days of the necropsy. If the death of the Devon Rex is shown to have been as a result of the fatal genetic defect, at the Sellers discretion, the Seller may either replace the Devon Rex with a new kitten within one year of notification or refund the purchase price to the Purchaser.
 - iii. The Health Guarantee is void if:

 - d. This guarantee covers genetic causes except for diseases such as FCoV (Feline Coronavirus), and FIP (Feline Infectious Peritonitis), which could be a combination of infection and individual predisposition, these diseases are NOT GENETIC and are specifically excluded. Diagnosing FIP is challenging. Despite the claims made by some laboratories and test manufacturers, there is currently no test that can distinguish between the harmless intestinal coronavirus and the deadly FIP coronavirus. A positive test may support the veterinarian's suspicions, but by itself is inconclusive. It means only that a cat has been exposed to and may be harboring a coronavirus. A negative test usually indicates that the cat is unlikely to have FIP.
 - e. A veterinary finding of parasites or Feline Upper Respiratory Infection (URI) shall not be grounds for declaring the animal unfit for sale unless the animal is clinically ill due to such condition and the Seller is provided with a signed veterinarian certificate within 7 days of the delivery date of the Devon Rex.
